The watches have a second hand.

The figures of the dial and the hands are left extra bold, so that the time can be seen instantly on a glance at the dial, and in nearly complete darkness.

The watch, as a whole, combines strength with all the conditions necessary to good time-keeping.

This watch has proved a complete success as a CAMPAIGN WATCH, and its usefulness is recognised by the daily increasing demand from all quarters of our Army in the field.

To Shikaries, Sportsmen, &c., these watches will prove to stand any amount of rough usage and handling.

We guarantee riding will not effect the working of these watches.

We dare confidently say that these watches, if treated with ordinary care, and cleaned once every two years, will give a 15 years' good service.

Every watch is fitted in a wooden case, in which will be found a spare glass, and a spare mainspring.

We receive now regular shipments of these watches by each mail, and every order can for the future be executed by return post.

Only watches that have been examined and timed are despatched on orders.

COMMERCIAL INTELLIGENCE

THURSDAY EVENING, DEC. 9, 1880.

REUTER reports the Board of Trade returns for the month of November as showing an increase of £4,093,750 in imports and £1,843,750 in exports as compared with the corresponding period last year. So far as trade at home is generally concerned this is no doubt satisfactory, but in connection with Bombay the influence of the figures is comparatively insignificant.

The drain on the Bank of England still continues, further withdrawals of £425,000 being advised in yesterday's telegram; but so far the money-market does not appear to have been materially affected. Stocks, however, indicate the general tendency, Consols being ⅛ lower at 99, while Enfaced Rupee Paper shows a decline of ¼ in Fours and ⅛ in Fours-and-a-half. French Rentes are unaltered at 119. Honkong and Shanghai Bank shares have advanced to £40.

In the General Produce markets there is no movement of any importance; and Metals are all as last quoted.

Piecegoods in Manchester are reported firm, but private advices say that there is little doing for this side.

The Liverpool Cotton market yesterday, Reuter says, closed unchanged, sales 10,000 bales, of which 800 were Surats. So far as the general tone goes this may be correct, but spot quotations mark a decline of 1-16d. in ready Mid-Uplands and 1-32d. in near futures. In New York, too, ready Mid-Uplands have receded from 12 to 11⅞ cents per lb. and March shipment from 12·32 to 12·19 cents; so that there is very distinct evidence of a downward movement. The receipts at the U. S. ports to date give the following comparisons with the two previous seasons:—

	1880.	1879.	1878.
Wednesday's receipts	29,000	38,000	31,000
Five days' do.	159,000	152,000	144,000
Total since 1st Sept.	2,687,000	2,502,000	2,086,000

At the weekly biddings for Council drafts on India in London yesterday, of the 35 lakhs offered Rs. 18,30,000 were drawn on Calcutta and Rs. 1,70,000 on Madras at an average of 1s. 7.76d., and Rs. 15,00,000 on Bombay at 1s. 7.81d., tenders on all three places at 1s. 7⅞d. receiving 6 per cent. of the amounts applied for. As compared with last week, when 1s. 7 13-16d. received 11 per cent., this shows a slight decline, but the figure is about what was generally anticipated here; and Bar Silver is still quoted at 51 13-16d. per oz., equivalent to about 1s. 7⅞d. per rupee. It is noticeable in this connection that no further shipments of silver are advised for this side.

EXCHANGE this morning opened very quiet, with a partial decline of 1-32d. per rupee both in ready and forward. The banks now all show more willingness to buy than sell forward, and it seems evident that until after the turn of the year, at least, weak markets are expected to prevail. Closing quotations for ready bills are:—

Bank Bills on demand	1s. 7 23-32d.	per rupee.
Do. telegraphic	1s. 7 11-16d.	"
Do. 3 months' sight.	1s. 7 13-16d.	"
Credits, 3 "	1s. 7 15-16d.	"
Documents, 3 "	1s. 7 31-32d.	"
Francs, 3 "	2f. 10¼c.	"

On Calcutta there is practically nothing doing, and no change in rates.

GOVERNMENT PAPER has undergone a further advance of ¼ to ⅜ per cent., but the decline advised both from London and Calcutta has tended to restrict buyers in their operations, and nothing like yesterday's activity has been apparent. The bulk of the paper on the market, however, is in strong hands, and so long as the present ease in money continues is not likely to be readily parted with. We call closing rates:—Fours, Rs. 100½; Fours-and-a-half, Rs. 109½.

SHARES are still firm, with, if anything, an upward tendency, but there is no great amount of activity apparent. Bank of Bombays are ¼ per cent. higher at Rs. 725, Nationals Rs. 1 higher at Rs. 107, Colaba Land shares are Rs. 5 higher at Rs. 830. In Press Companies the only change is an advance of Rs. 5 in Berars. Spinning and Weaving Mill shares are stronger owing to the decline which has taken place in Cotton, and in most of the leading companies our quotations show a recovery of Rs. 5 to Rs. 10 per share.

COTTON.—Reuter's Liverpool and New York telegrams were again late in coming to hand, and for a great portion of the morning nothing whatever was done. Afterwards a strong disposition to sell was shown, and some little business was done at a further decline of Rs. 2 to Rs. 3 per candy, Good Broach for March having changed hands at Rs. 240 and Good Oomra for February delivery at Rs. 223 per candy.

LINSEED continues in active request at about previous prices, say, Rs. 6-12 to Rs. 6-14 per cwt. for ready, and Rs. 6-7 to Rs. 6-7½ for May delivery.

WHEAT is firm at Rs. 3¾ per candy for Soft White ready.

FREIGHTS are fairly steady, but not quotably altered. For Liverpool we quote weight at 35s., measurement 36s. 3d. to 37s. 6d. London tonnage is offering at 36s. 3d. Mediterranean and Continental rates show no change.

PIECEGOODS are, if anything, a shade quieter. To-day's clearances from the bazaar are only put at about 300 packages; and although values are no lower, there is undoubtedly more difficulty in effecting sales.

COALS are steady at unchanged rates.

The Bombay Gazette

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 10, 1880.

IN the first outburst of wrath evoked by the fatal news of the battle of Maiwand a host of critics fell foul of, and fiercely denounced, the whole Bombay Army, which had to bear the brunt of an extraordinary amount of vituperation. However, a more just and calmer tone of criticism is now observable, and we have no intention of going over the well-known details of a story that has been told and re-told until everyone is thoroughly familiar with it. But since the conduct of Scinde troops has been so much in question we propose to remind our readers of the curious way in which it fell to the lot of Bombay to furnish Scinde with a garrison when it became a British province. It was first determined to send Bengal regiments on this duty, but when these found that certain allowances were to be withheld from them, they halted and refused to march a step further towards the Indus; then Madras was tried, but a similar misunderstanding arose in regard to allowances and free rations; and the coast regiments could not be sent. And so it fell to Bombay to supply the necessary regiments, which have since been replaced by what may be called a local Scinde force. As some of the incidents connected with these arrangements are very curious and illustrate a state of feeling in the Native Army which, we are glad to believe, has wholly passed away, we will briefly recount the facts. "The direct and immediate result of well nigh every annexation of territory," says Sir John Kaye, "by which our Indian Empire has been extended, may be clearly discerned in the shattered discipline of the sepoy army." Now, at first sight, there seems to be no particular connection between an extension of territory and shattered discipline, but what Sir John means is this. In the earlier days of our rule in India, when our troops were actively engaged against some native State, they received extra pay and batta. When the campaign was over, and the conquered State became a British possession, the troops that had subdued it were employed to garrison it. But the extra allowances they had received in time of war ceased when peace was declared, and native troops found themselves far from home, garrisoning what was to them a strange country, on the same pay that they received when they were close to home and among familiar scenes and places. This occasioned much murmuring and great discontent, and the sepoys openly declared that the Sirkar employed them to win victories and conquer countries, and then cut their pay for doing so. The whole dispute about the garrisoning of Scinde in 1843 turned on a question of pay. The sepoys refused to cross the Indus unless they were given what were commonly called the Indus allowances. Government persistently withheld these allowances, declaring that they were given only when fighting was to be done beyond the Indus, and not for what was simple garrison duty. These extra allowances were first given when our forces crossed the Indus, in 1838, and marched on Kabul by way of Kandahar; they were withdrawn in 1840 from the troops in Scinde, but were again granted when Pollock took his Army of Retribution to the Afghan capital. And so it came to pass that, after we had shown the Afghans that they could not massacre our army with impunity, and had annexed Scinde because it appeared sound policy to do so, it became necessary to send a garrison to hold our new territory, and the 34th Bengal N. I. being one of the regiments told off for this duty, had halted at Ferozepore, and refused to go on unless they were guaranteed the old allowances for service beyond the Indus. The 4th and 69th Bengal N. I. followed the example of the 34th; and Sir John Kaye tells us that "the 7th Bengal Cavalry, on the march to the frontier, had broken into open mutiny, and in spite of all the efforts of their officers, who had guaranteed to pay them from their own funds the allowances they demanded, the troopers had refused to obey the trumpet-call to march, and were halted therefore, sullen and obstinate, in the neighbourhood of Ferozepore." This incident not only shows how thoroughly distasteful to the Bengal Army was the idea of serving in Scinde, that "dreary outlying graveyard," as Kaye calls it, but it proves how tainted was that army even in 1843, with the mutinous spirit that blazed forth so terribly in 1857.

These difficulties having cropped up in regard to the garrisoning of Scinde with Bengal troops, Bombay was asked to send a couple of regiments. But Bombay having more military stations on her hands than she had troops to send to occupy them, could not spare a man for Scinde, and so passed on the requisition to Madras. Mutiny would appear to have been the fashion in those days, for Kaye tells us in a foot-note that "there had been several recent instances of extreme insubordination, amounting indeed to mutiny, in the Madras Army. The 32nd Native Infantry had mutinied at Asseergurh and Mallegaum; there had been a mutiny of the Madras troops at Secunderabad; and the 2nd and 41st had shown a bad spirit when ordered to embark for China. The 3rd and 4th Native Cavalry regiments had also mutinied, the former in 1838, the latter in 1843." However, notwithstanding these little troubles, Madras at once responded to the call made on her, and two regiments were warned for Scinde. But from the outset the whole business was miserably and pitiably mismanaged. One of the two regiments of Madras Native Infantry told of for this duty was already under orders for Moulmein, an outlying station, where troops were allowed extra pay and free rations, as the Bombay regiments are at Aden to this day. So the Marquis of Tweedale, then Governor of Madras, by way of making things pleasant, promised the regiments going to Scinde that they should enjoy the same privileges in the way of pay and rations as they would have done had their destination been Moulmein. No promise could have been more unfortunate. Directly the Governor-General, Lord Ellenborough, heard of it, he regarded it as an infringement of his prerogative, and peremptorily refused his sanction to the arrangement. Even more, he ordered that the transport conveying one of the two Madras regiments—the 47th—to Scinde should put in at Bombay, where the men were to be landed, and informed that their additional pay and rations were disallowed. They were accordingly put on shore at Bombay, when they found themselves in the plight thus described by Sir John Kaye. "The greater part of their pay up to the end of March had already been disbursed to them for the benefit of the families whom they had left behind, and they now found, in the middle of February, that the scanty residue, on which they had relied for their own support, was by these retrenchments taken away from them, and that, far away from home, starvation stared them in the face. It was not strange that they should have regarded this as a cruel breach of faith, and that they should have resented it." They showed their resentment by what is technically mutiny in the military sense; they refused to march to their lines when ordered to, and they demanded what they not unreasonably called their rights. A timely advance of pay to meet present necessities quieted the men, and the insubordination died away. But the experiment of garrisoning Scinde with Bengal or Madras troops had failed, and Bombay was called upon to send regiments, which she did, and many a Bombay sepoy has left his bones in Shikarpore and other fever-haunted spots of the "outlying graveyard" that both Bengalee and Madrasee declined to garrison. We have revived this little bit of half-forgotten history, because it illustrates a curious phase of sepoy character, the tenacity with which he clings to what he imagines to be his rights in regard to pay and privileges, and the intense dislike he has to being sent on any service that carries him away from his own native province. And it also shows the childish folly of those who write so glibly of the "advantages" which would accrue from the abolition of the Bombay Army as a separate force, and the merging of the troops of the Empire in the Bengal Army. If that blunder be ever consummated, no other of equal magnitude will be left us to commit.

ABOUT sixty miles north-west from Rangoon, at the junction of the Panlang creek with the Irrawaddy, lies the town of Yandoon. Before the last Burmese war Yandoon was an insignificant village with about 500 inhabitants. Under the British Government it has become a place of some importance, and now has a resident population of nearly 10,000 souls, whilst during the rainy season as many as a thousand boats—many of them of large size—collect at Yandoon, dispose of their cargoes, and purchase other merchandise either for Rangoon or Upper Burmah. It seems that in the month of November some cases of cholera occurred in Yandoon. Having much communication with all parts of the adjoining country, it would be strange, when cholera existed anywhere in the province, if it did not occasionally show itself here. The Assistant Commissioner, whose head-quarters are at this station, seemed to think that the best way of meeting the disease was to change the diet of the wh

STEAMER REPORT.

GALLE, DEC. 9, 7 A.M.

Mail-steamer Kaiser-i-Hind, from Aden, arrived.

H. E. THE GOVERNOR will proceed to Bhownagar about the 16th instant to open the State Railway there. His Highness the Thakore of Bhownagar has invited a number of European and native gentlemen of Bombay to be present at the opening ceremony, and a few guests left yesterday for Bhownagar. Messrs. Eyrajeee Jeejeebhoy, C.S.I., Ibrahim, Mr. Nanabhoy, and other friends yesterday left Bombay by the mail-train, and will halt at Surat for a couple of days before proceeding to Bhownagar by the steamer belonging to that State.

IT is notified in Bombay General Orders, dated 7th December, that Major-General R. Phayre, C.B., Staff Corps, is appointed to the Divisional Staff, vice Lieutenant-General J. Forbes, C.B., whose period of service on the Staff expires on the 5th proximo.

THE last weekly official report on the state of the weather and crops in the Bombay Presidency states that prospects generally continue good. Prices still show a downward tendency. Fever continues, but is abating in Guzerat.

YESTERDAY'S Bombay Government Gazette contains the announcement that Mr. Sorabjee Shapurjee Bengali has been appointed Sheriff of Bombay for the ensuing year, to be computed from the 20th December, 1880.

THERE are some important matters for discussion at the next meeting of the Bombay Municipal Corporation, to be held on the 17th instant. The Chairman will propose the adoption of a memorial to His Excellency the Viceroy, protesting against the deduction of Rs. 15,000 from the contribution of the Bombay Government towards the police expenses and diversion of that sum to meet part of the cost of working the Contagious Diseases Act; and the Corporation will have presented for their consideration a letter from the Secretary to Government, Public Works Department, forwarding letter from the Government of India, and requesting that the Municipal Corporation will favour Government with such information as the Municipality can afford as to the extent to which the public would be likely to avail themselves of the telephone if it were introduced into India as part of the machinery of the Telegraph Department, and established wherever there is reasonable promise of the system being advantageously worked.

THE report of the chief auditor and accountant of the Bombay and Baroda Railway on the revenue account for the half-year ending 30th June, 1880, shows that the results of the half-year's working are the most favourable hitherto attained, the net profit exceeding that of June, 1877, the best half-year the railway had previously had, by Rs. 4,48,910. It should, however, be remembered that the expenditure during the former period included a net charge of Rs. 1,86,476 on account of repairs and reconstruction of works damaged by the floods of 1876; on the other hand, the receipts were swelled to a considerable extent by the unusually large quantity of grain conveyed over the line from Guzerat on account of the famine in the Deccan and Madras; whereas, the large increase in the earnings for last half-year is due mainly to abundant crops, especially of cotton, in Guzerat and Kathiawar, to a general revival from the commercial depression of the previous two or three years, and to the opening of 82 miles of the Western Rajputana State Railway. The proportion of the receipts from traffic exchanged with the W. R. S. Railway during the half-year amounted to Rs. 3,87,305, viz., coaching Rs. 12,771, merchandise Rs. 3,72,798, and telegraph Rs. 1,736.

THE Pioneer explains it was by a mistake in a telegram that it was led to state the other day that Colonel Gordon had arrived at Calcutta, and was staying with the Lieutenant-Governor. It was Mr. J. D. Gordon, C.S.I., the Chief Commissioner of Mysore, who was referred to.

NOTHING could be more puerile than the Pioneer's latest tirade, excited by the well-deserved honour paid recently to the gallant 1st Grenadiers on their return to Bombay. "The attitude of the Bombay public and authorities towards the troops returning from Kandahar," says this theosophic philosopher, "is becoming positively ludicrous. The entertainment just given to the 1st Bombay Grenadiers would have been an indiscreet demonstration even if nothing had been said to bring it prominently into notice; but, coupled with the speeches of the Governor and the Commander-in-Chief, it is fairly absurd. Rhymes of all kinds mocking the demonstrations of this misplaced local patriotism are already flying about. 'He who fights and runs away [only the Grenadiers did not run away!] shall have a banquet at Bombay,' is one of the general conclusions reached by an observant philosopher. 'They were not so fortunate,' says the Governor addressing the Grenadiers, 'as some of the regiments that had gained an easy victory.' On the same principle a Glasgow Bank director might have been told by an admiring judge that he was not so fortunate as some commercial magnates who have conducted their shareholders to an honourable prosperity. 'They stood side by side with European soldiers,' but 'were not so fortunate as to bring back their colours.' Mark Twain could hardly improve on compliments of this sort. General Warre was, if possible, even more 'unfortunate' in his language. He reminded the Grenadiers that in the race where many run only one could win, and so forth. He is quite the first general, surely, who has assumed that in the operations of British troops, as well as on the racecourse, it is to be expected that many should run. The truth, of course, is that there is great excuse to be found for the behaviour of the troops at Maiwand, because they were so wretchedly handled; but this apology for their conduct does not justify their treatment as heroes." What a pity the editor of the Pioneer was not in command at Maiwand! Had that mighty soldier, that wonderful tactician, been there with a regiment of his P. D.'s, Nazra would have remained a name "unknown unhonoured, and unsung," and Roberts would not have won his bronze star.

IT is quite possible that the Governor of Bombay will visit some portion of the North-West Provinces, as Allahabad paper says, before he returns to his capital, after presiding at the opening of the Ajmere-Palanpur section of the Rajputana State Railway. The fêtes in honour of the opening of that portion of the line are to come off at Erinpura, half way between Palanpur and Ajmere; and when he gets so far, it is stated, His Excellency may visit Ajmere, Jeypore and even Agra.

THE Bombay correspondent of the Pioneer, noticing Sir James Fergusson's appearance in the hunting-field, remarks that "His Excellency was rather unfortunate in getting his horses out from England. They had very bad weather in the Bay of Biscay, and one was drowned by a sea breaking over the ship, while another was very much damaged. He has, however, managed to suit himself very well with Walers from Calcutta, and others here have followed his example. Here, as a rule, we only get Australians sent on from Madras after the remount officers and others have had their pick, and consequently we do not get the best. We make up for it in Arabs, however, of which the Byculla stables are now full, but their prices keep very high. It is a curious fact connected with these horses that they will fetch more in their unbroken state—and, you might nearly say, without any trial, for the cantering about the stable yards does not count for much—than they ever will afterwards, however satisfactorily they turn out, unless, of course, they prove to possess speed enough for the turf."

THE same correspondent observes on matters military:—"Major Adam has been gazetted to Mhow as Assistant Quartermaster-General, and the Bombay Gazette thinks that General J. Ross will get the Poona command. So do I. It is a charming division, with a delightful climate throughout the rains and Poorundhur as a hot weather retreat. Brigadier-General Aitchison, who commands the Bombay district, is going home in the spring. He was better—some people might say worse—known as Adjutant-General of the Bombay army for many years, his great hobby being dress. What General Annesley's will be, or whether he has any, remains to be seen, for we know little of him on this side of India. He was in the same regiment, and, I fancy, got on well with Major Rivett-Carnac, the Military Secretary to the Commander-in-Chief, and, combined, they would be very powerful."

DR. WEIR'S recent tricycle accident leads the Pioneer's Bombay correspondent to a fervent expression of the hope that it will "prove a caution to people not to ride about on these infernal machines, for they are becoming far too popular, especially with Parsees. With their India-rubber tyres, they are often perfectly noiseless, and come stepping past in a way that often startles one, and is bound to set one's horses going if they have any go in them. The other day a Parsee nearly put me and my dog-cart into the gutter in this way, and it evidently was nothing new to him, for he was quite equal to the occasion. 'I had just righted myself, and probably my next move would have been to sling him; but before I could get in a word edgeways he had begun, 'I will ride bicycle on road,' and owing to the time and place I had to let him continue to 'ride bicycle on road' unmolested." The correspondent appears to regard tricycles and bicyles as one and the same, which they are not.

IN an official paper lately published the Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjab remarks that the negotiations opened by Government with the Simla Hill chiefs for the lease and protection of their deodar forests have not proved very successful. The reason of the failure seems to be that the terms offered by Government are not very attractive beside the profit which can be made straight of by the sale of the forest timber to contractor. Thus, as regards Keonthal, His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor believes that the Raja will much prefer the profits to be had out of contractors and the Simla market to any advantages in the future which Government might offer. Something, however, has been done. Leases of the forests of Racengarh and Bashahr have been effected; and the forests of the Jubbal and Taroch States, whose chiefs are minors, will be protected for the present by the Superintendent of Hill States. In the same official paper the Lieutenant-Governor notices that the forest fires in the Hazara and Rawal Pindi districts caused a very serious amount of damage last year.

THE rumours that have long been current of a threatened abolition of the Press Commissionership are not, the Englishman believes, entirely without foundation, though he is able to state definitely that no orders on the point have as yet been finally passed. We have, says our contemporary, hitherto been silent on this subject, so important both to the press and to the public, because we have believed, and still believe, that the Viceroy will not hesitate to negative the proposal, when he finds that the whole press of India is virtually unanimous in deprecating it; and other means have been taken to inform His Excellency of that fact. But lest our silence should be misconstrued by our readers and by our brethren of the press, we wish to state, in the most emphatic terms, our opinion that any attempt thus to deprive the public of authentic official information will be universally regarded as at once impolitic and unjustifiable. And we fully agree with the view so generally expressed by our contemporaries, that a reversion to the policy of bartering information for flattery must prove as disastrous to the good name of the Government as it will undoubtedly be offensive in the highest degree to the honourable feelings of the Indian press.

ON the retirement of Colonel Andrew Munro the Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjab has placed on record his high estimation of that officer's services throughout a long and arduous career. Between the years 1859 and 1871 Colonel Munro, at various times, held charge of every border district from Hazara to Dera Ghazi Khan. In 1863 he served as Political Assistant to Colonel Reynell Taylor through the Ambeyla campaign; and since 1871 he has been, with short intervals of special duty, Commissioner and Superintendent of the Derajat division. Amongst other things, he has borne a part in the reorganisation of the Frontier Militia, in the arrangements for the better administration of the Tonk Valley, in the improvement of tribal responsibility for guarding the passes, and also in the final settlement of Khelat affairs; his thorough knowledge of the Biluch and Pathan border tribes proving, says His Honour, of the utmost value to Government. Colonel Munro's name, Sir Robert Egerton concludes, will be remembered with honour both by the Government he has so loyally served and by the border tribes whose affairs he has so long and so ably administered.

A NOTIFICATION was published in the Gazette of India, only three months ago, concerning the retirement of Royal Engineer officers in the Public Works Department. Such officers, it was enacted, were to come under the rule which prescribes retirement at 55 years of age, or soon afterwards; and no officer was to be re-appointed after reaching that age, nor to retain any appointment he had held for five years. By these wholesome rules the present Inspector-General of Military Works, General Hutchinson, would have to retire at the end of the year. A report has got abroad, however, which says that General Hutchinson will be allowed to keep his appointment for two years longer. The Pioneer describes this arrangement as one which will neither be creditable to the Government—to the Secretary of State's Council, that is—nor conduce to the efficiency of the department.

THE Government are, says the Englishman, incurring a very grave responsibility in allowing troops to remain at Kohima, in the Naga Hills, as, in consequence of the breakdown of transport, they are practically without supplies. The Kohima garrison is 60 miles in the hills and 128 miles from their base. There is no road to the place. The transport has broken down, and the difficulty of obtaining supplies from the surrounding country is so great that the troops live from hand to mouth and constantly have only one day's rasad in store. Under these circumstances it would be quite impossible to reinforce the place, and it is possible, though not probable, that additional troops might be required, for the Nagas are still in a very unquiet state. Though we hope to hear of the cold weather passing over without a rising, we should at least be prepared for such an event when dealing with such warlike and independent savages.

COLONEL LYTTELTON ANNESLEY, whose appointment as Adjutant-General to Bombay we (Army and Navy Gazette) announced some time ago, will leave shortly for the scene of his labours. The delay in his departure was caused by the claims of the Indian Government to fill up the vacancy, but it is a wholesome rule, which, we hope, to see of invariable application, that the senior officers of the Adjutant-General's Department in India should be Queen's officers, and that those of the Quartermaster-General's Department should belong to the Indian Army. Colonel Annesley's term of service in Whitehall was distinguished by much intelligence and industry, and was associated with some substantial reforms.

THE Celestial Empire has an article on the Chinese arsenal at Kiangnan. It appears that very little work is being done there just now. More than half the machinery is at a stand-still. Each department is superintended by a foreigner, but the hands and the foremen are Chinese, who work after the manner of their country. These workmen may be seen with a fan or cigarette in one hand, or lounging about with cups of tea. Still they manage to turn out good rifles of the Remington pattern, about 200 men making the number at the rate of 60 a week. During the last two years, also, eighteen 40-pdr. Armstrong guns have been made, and a 120-pdr. is nearly ready. A screw-steamer is also being built in the arsenal.

AN eight-days' "mission," a "salvation army," and other forms of religious activity being afoot, it will not be out of place to reproduce some sentiments of an orthodox American clergyman, printed in a paper contributed by him to a recent number of the North American Review. Something like the following has been often said by lay critics of the doctrinal clergy, but it is not often that we find a minister of religion expressing himself with so much candour concerning the other-worldliness of the members of his own profession:—"Many individual minds and many districts of country, called civilised regions, are still 'up in the air' in all their forms of theory and practice. It is particularly true of that professional pursuit called the pulpit that it betrays the utmost reluctance to a faithful building up of this anxious and tear-stricken world in all its onerous and vital temporal interests, and in many ways expresses the false and selfish idea that the best religion is that which simply jumps over earth and lands upon pardon's better and blissful side."

THE GAIETY THEATRE.

THE theatre company showed emphatically on Wednesday that they can play a piece well, and their really good performance on that occasion went far to remove from the minds of those who witnessed it the unfavourable impression created by the fiasco of Monday evening. The pieces produced on Wednesday were the comedy of The Widow and a farce entitled the Limerick Boy. The parts in the comedy were sustained by Mrs. Digby Willoughby (the widow, Mrs. Sutherland), Mrs. Norville (Miss Anastasia Winterbury, an elderly and very prim and precise maiden lady), Miss. Emily Blaine (Edith Leslie, the pretty and accomplished niece of Miss Winterbury), Mr. Crofton (Captain Freeman), Mr. Frank Stuart (Mr. Middlemark), and Mr. Norville (Mr. Babblebrook, the old gentleman primed with all the gossip of the place, and nicknamed by his acquaintances, on account of his acquisitive and talkative propensities, the Newspaper). Mrs. Sutherland and Captain Freeman are allies pledged to assist each other in obtaining matrimonial partners suitable to their individual tastes. Captain Freeman's taste leads him to desire marriage with Edith Leslie. But Mr. Middlemark has the same object in view, and the rivalry between the gentlemen and the diplomacy of the ladies bring about a variety of amusing situations. There is, in addition, the side-issue between the elderly couple, Mr. Babblebrook and the spinster aunt, Miss Winterbury. Eventually, everything is amicably settled to everybody's satisfaction by Mr. Middlemark withdrawing from the suit to Miss Leslie, and devoting himself to the vivacious widow, at the same time assisting the retiring Captain Freeman, better at facing an enemy than a woman, to the consummation he had been sighing for. Mrs. Norville was highly successful in her delineation of the queer old maiden lady, and Miss Blaine was equally good in the character of the clever and ladylike niece. Mrs. Willoughby, too, acted the widow in very good style. The gentlemen did not show to such good advantage as the ladies. There was not much fault to be found with Mr. Crofton's representation of Captain Freeman, but neither Mr. Middlemark nor Mr. Babblebrook, as pourtrayed by Mr. Stuart and Mr. Norville, were strong features. Mr. Stuart would not act badly if he would get rid of some of the consequential mannerism which largely discounts his efforts. On the whole the piece went remarkably well, and we shall be glad to have another opportunity of seeing it played by this company during the season.

The farce was a decided hit, Mr. Turner, as Paddy Miles, a typical Irish "bhoy," who acts as the medium of communication between the two young lovers, Harry and Jane, being extremely good. Mr. Cowell, too, was worth seeing in the character of Dr. Coats, a more ancient victim of Cupid's dart, who pays court to Jane's mother, Mrs. Fidgit. Mrs. Norville and Miss Blaine again appeared in the farce, the former playing Mrs. Fidgit, and the other lady taking the part of Jane.

THE BOMBAY HUNT.

(FROM OUR HUNTING CORRESPONDENT.)

THE meet yesterday morning was at Mr. Jackson's bungalow, on Worlee Hill. There was a large field, and the hospitable traditions of the house were well sustained. At 6-10 the Master led away along the Ridge of the Hill towards the south, and the hounds were thrown into a near convert soon after. A few minutes of working were rewarded with a find, the jack breaking immediately along the hillside. The well-known stone walls of Worlee Hill tried the jumping powers of the horses, and only one or two of the field kept up with the Master for the first ten minutes. The run along the hill was rapid, jack all the time working down towards the highroad. When close upon it he was viewed, the leading hounds being within fifteen or twenty yards of him. But the ground favoured him, and he was able to break from the hill and across the road on to the flats, well in advance, when he afforded, perhaps, the sharpest and pleasantest run obtained this season. At first he made a line due east towards the railway, but after crossing the creek, which fortunately was pretty dry, he held more to the left, and eventually took to the Mahim woods, where he was killed. The run from the find to the death lasted twenty minutes, and the pace was tearing throughout. There were three ladies out, and they all rode bravely; the riding of one young lady especially created the intense admiration of those who were leading and saw it. The kill having occurred while the morning was young, the Master determined to try again. He accordingly led across the flats to the favourable covert adjoining the Tulsi Main. This was drawn, but apparently in vain, and the hounds were being led further on, when a faint and plaintive whimper broke from the covert, and it was found that one faithful hound had been left behind, and had found scent. "Yoick back" was the cry, and in less time than it takes to tell the hounds were after a jack in full cry across the pipes, and heading straight eastward. Jack, however, crossed the railway line, the wire fencing of which, combined with the warning cry of "the mail train is coming!" acted as a check, and the level-crossing being distant, and the suburb of Parell beyond, the field got broken up, not to be reconsolidated.

The next meet is on the favourite ground at the village of Kurr. The dews are heavy now, the scent consequently good; the hounds improve every day, as does also the Master's humour with every kill; and this most popular of all the amusements at present extant in Bombay will, we are sure, have many votaries at the next meet.

The horse was ultimately secured at Cammateepora. No one was in any way seriously injured. The horse, it appears, first took fright on the Queen's Road, and subsequently became altogether unmanageable.

BIRTHS AND DEATHS IN BOMBAY.—The total number of deaths registered during the week ending Tuesday, 7th instant, was 390, being 8 more than in the previous week, 126 less than the week ending 9th December, 1879, and 68 less than the mean of the corresponding period in the preceding five years. During the week 354 births were reported in the different districts of the city. The rate of mortality per 1,000 of the population per annum was 29·53. There were 92 deaths from remittent fever, being 8 less than in the previous week, and 85 less than in the same period last year. The deaths from diseases to the respiratory system, diarrhœa, and dysentery were last week 47, 10, and 25 respectively as compared with 31, 10, and 34 last year. The following remark is appended by the Health Officer to his return:—"As there is no allowance made for the increase of population, natural and extraordinary, during recent years, the percentages of mortality are unreliable."

BOMBAY DEBATING SOCIETY.—At the meeting on Wednesday last the Rt. Rev. Dr. Meurin read the remainder of his lecture "On God's Omniscience," in which he minutely explained the essential difference between sense and intellect, the origin of our ideas, the mode of man's, the angel's, and God's understanding, the spheres of their respective powers of intelligence, and the medium in which they see the object of their cognition, and which for God's intelligence is infinitely small, i. e., none at all. The lecture concluded with the proof that God not only sees and comprehends Himself, but also all possible, all real, and all hypothetical past, present, and future things, necessary events, and free actions, in one single, simple, immutable, and eternal infinite idea. When the lecture was over Mr. Naidoo claimed for the animals the faculty of reason, from their sagacity, kindness, patience, memory, gratitude, susceptibility to training and understanding, and from the fact that human beings and animals have passions to an equal degree. The Rt. Rev. Chairman referred to his lecture to show that the passions and capacities enumerated all belonged to the sensitive powers, which man has in common with the animals, even understanding in the vulgar, though not in the philosophical sense of the word. But all this did not prove that animals can also syllogize or reason, and that they are endowed with the faculty of reason, even in the vulgar sense of the word. Further objections of Mr. Naidoo will be discussed at next Wednesday's meeting.
